

“How To Recognize When God’s Calling You To Pivot And Shift”

~A.L. Moss, Sr., M.Th.

1. God will disrupt your comfort zone.
 - a. Your discomfort might be Divine direction, when everything that once felt familiar starts to feel tight. God might be inviting you into something new, Genesis 12:1. Sometimes the agitation is an invitation.
2. When closed doors start to multiply.
 - a. You’ve been faithful, but now what worked before is no longer producing fruit, Revelation 3:7. Closed doors aren’t rejection, they’re redirection.
3. Divine discomfort increases.
 - a. You feel a deep stirring in your spirit. What satisfied in the last season, doesn’t anymore, Haggai 1:8. The discontent is often a nudge towards destiny.
4. God sends confirmation in layers.
 - a. Through dreams, conversations, scripture or random encounters, you keep getting the same message. It’s time to move, 2 Corinthians 13:1. God confirms what He demands.
5. You feel like you’re transitioning, but nothing is clear.
 - a. You’re not where you used to be, but you don’t know yet where you’re going, Exodus 18:17-18. The wilderness is not punishment, it’s preparation.
6. 4 Biblical Tips to transition well.
 - 1) Pray for clarity and confirmation, James 1:5.
 - 2) Fast to discern divine timing, Ecclesiastes 3:1.
 - 3) Get wise council, Proverbs 11:14.
 - 4) Obey God’s instructions, Luke 16:10.

Daily Declarations For A Divine Pivot

Speak these over yourself:

- I. I will not fear transition, because God is in control of my next.
- II. God is ordering my steps and I trust His direction.
- III. Every closed door is guiding me in greater alignment.
- IV. I release the old and embrace the new thing God is doing.
- V. I move forward in boldness, peace, and clarity.
