Lost Bags

My two lost bags: hoping to be reconnected tomorrow night.

Hi FBC Watsonville.

After a grueling two days of travel, I am happy to report that I made it safely to Lubango, Angola. I am currently staying in the SIM guesthouse, resting and getting settled. First meeting with leadership team will be this afternoon at 2:30.

Unfortunately, my bags did not keep up with me when I switched planes in New York. Oops! I have AirTags in both bags and along with tracking in the Delta app, I can confirm that one bag already made it to Paris and the other is in the air as I write.

Both bags should hopefully arrive in Luanda, from Paris, tomorrow morning. From there, the travel service SIM Angola works with, should collect them and transfer them to the regional airport across town, for tomorrow night's flight to Lubango. If all goes well, I will be able to collect my bags then.

A bit complicated (even with a few tricky details left out. Ha!) but do pray for me to take it all in stride and, most importantly, that I will be a blessing to our team here. Pray for meaningful connections and encouraging conversations.
