Special Sundays in the Month of October

By Rev. Dr. Matthew M. Williams, Senior Pastor

As October approaches, Trinity United Methodist Church turns its heart toward two cherished Sundays that invite us to reflect deeply on our faith. Amid the vibrant colors of autumn leaves and the gentle chill of the season, we come together to celebrate World Communion Sunday and Laity Sunday—two moments that encourage us to consider our place within the expansive family of Christ and our collective mission in God's service.

World Communion Sunday, observed on October 5, offers us the opportunity to celebrate both our unity and our diversity as worshippers together in the universal Christian community. On October 19, we will observe Laity Sunday, a time set aside to reflect upon the ministries and works of lay persons in the church community.

Continue reading to learn more about these special Sundays in the month of October. We hope you'll make plans to join us!

World Communion Sunday—October 5, 2025

8:30, 9:45, 11:00 a.m.

On the first Sunday of October, we join hands with Christians from around the world in the sacred act of Holy Communion. Known as World Communion Sunday, this observance dates back to 1933 when the Rev. Hugh Thomson Kerr, a Presbyterian pastor in Pittsburgh, envisioned a day to unite believers during the challenging days of the Great Depression.

In the 1940s, as the world emerged from the shadows of war, this observance spread across denominations, including our own United Methodist tradition. It serves as a powerful symbol of hope and unity, reminding us that the church transcends our immediate sanctuary and extends to every corner of the globe, embracing all who call upon the name of Christ.

As we gather at the Lord's Table, we remember our connection with brothers and sisters in faraway places—whether in grand cathedrals or simple gatherings under the open sky. The bread we break and the cup we share weave us into the living tapestry of Christ's body, diverse yet united in grace. This act of communion offers a preview of the heavenly banquet, where God's boundless love welcomes everyone.

The Apostle Paul powerfully expresses this unity in 1 Corinthians 10:16-17:

“The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? For we, being many, are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread.”

These words encourage us to look beyond our walls, to pray for those who worship amid hardship, and to renew our commitment to the peace and justice that Christ proclaimed.

Laity Sunday—October 19, 2025

8:30, 9:45, 11:00 a.m.

On the third Sunday of October, we celebrate Laity Sunday—an occasion dedicated to honoring the vital contributions of those who, while not ordained, are called to carry forth the work of Christ. This observance has its roots in the Methodist movement of the 18th century, when John Wesley, inspired by the Spirit, empowered ordinary men and women to take on leadership roles within the burgeoning societies of England. In the midst of the Industrial Revolution, Wesley's vision encouraged laypeople to preach, teach, and care for one another, ensuring that the gospel reached hearts everywhere. Today, formalized in our United Methodist tradition, Laity Sunday continues to affirm that every believer is called to ministry, bearing gifts that enrich the church's mission.

At Trinity, we are grateful to hear from our Lay Leader, Kathy Drake, who will share a heartfelt message rooted in faith. Other members of our congregation will participate in leading worship, offering their voices, prayers, and talents as a testament to the Spirit's work among us. This day joyfully reminds us that the church thrives not only through its clergy but through the collective commitment of all who love the Lord.

Laity Sunday invites us to reflect on the truth that the strength of the church lies in the hands and hearts of its people. In a world that often encourages isolation, this day calls us back to the biblical vision of a body in which every member has a purpose. As Paul writes in Romans 12:4-5: "For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office: so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."

Trinity UMC Lay Leader Kathy Drake, with husband Dan Drake

This vision has sustained the church through centuries, from early Methodist revivals to modern movements for justice, where laypeople have embodied the hands and feet of Christ. Let us take a moment to give thanks for the countless ways our congregation serves and recommit ourselves to live out our calling with courage and love.

Though distinct, World Communion Sunday and Laity Sunday weave together a single thread of truth: we are one in Christ, and all are called to serve. World Communion Sunday lifts our eyes to the global fellowship of believers united in a sacred meal. At the same time, Laity Sunday directs our attention to the gifts within our own pews, where every disciple is essential to God's work. Together, they remind us that the mission of the church belongs to all of us—clergy and laity, near and far.

Trinity Men's Daybreak Breakfast: A Nourishing Start to Your Day

By Rev. E. Wayne Curry, Minister of Pastoral Care

We invite you to join us every Tuesday at 7:00 a.m. in Moor Hall for a special gathering at our church—the Trinity Men's Daybreak Breakfast. This weekly event brings together 15 to 20 men from our community for a time of delicious food, camaraderie, engaging discussions, and shared prayer.

As the sun rises and the aroma of freshly brewed coffee fills the air, we come together to nourish not only our bodies but also our spirits. The breakfast spread is always a hearty and delectable one prepared with love and care by our very own Culinary Director, Betsy Gingery. But more than the food, it is the fellowship and sense of community that makes this gathering truly special.

Men's Daybreak attendees in Moor Hall

Over the past few weeks, we have been journeying through Jim Harnish's poignant book, "Strength for the Broken Places." Led by Reverend Dr. Williams and Reverend Curry, together we have delved into each chapter, sharing our insights, struggles, and victories as we explore the themes of resilience, hope, and healing. It has been a transformative experience for many of us, a journey that has deepened our faith and strengthened our bonds with one another.

As we prepare to conclude our discussions on "Strength for the Broken Places," we look forward to embarking on a new book, a new journey, a new opportunity to grow and learn in the company of like-minded men who share a common desire to seek wisdom and deepen their faith.

So, if you are looking for a meaningful way to start your day, we welcome you to join us at the Trinity Men's Daybreak Breakfast. Whether you have been a regular attendee or are considering joining us for the first time, know that you will be met with warm smiles, open hearts, and a place at the table. Together, let us nourish our bodies, minds, and souls as we journey together towards greater understanding, compassion, and spiritual growth.

We look forward to seeing you there! If you have any questions contact Reverend Curry at waynecurry@tumct.org.

Women's Bible Study

By Candace Duclos, Senior Director of Christian Education

Hey, Friend! Are you looking for a way to deepen your walk with Jesus while also growing closer with other women?! Well, then look no further! Our Women's Bible Study began meeting last fall and is a place for all women to grow in Christ's love together.

We meet on Mondays at 9:30 a.m. in the library for conversations and encouragement as we delve into the Word of God. This fall we are studying A Disciple's Path by James A Harnish. This study provides an opportunity to closely examine what we believe as United Methodists as well as how to share our faith with others.

Trinity Enters Into Agreement With FSU College of Music

By Dr. Iain Quinn, Professor of Organ and Coordinator of Sacred Music at Florida State University

Trinity has recently entered into a new agreement with the FSU College of Music related to the use of the Casavant organ for ongoing lessons and recitals. This is an important milestone in the relationship between the two institutions which share many ties. In recent years the organ at Trinity has been an important part of the pedagogical experience for students as well as an instrument of considerable significance for performances in the region with guest recitalists most recently including Professor Emeritus James Kibbie of the University of Michigan. The recent agreement also reaffirms a commitment to the field of sacred music and to the education of future generations of musicians working in ministry.

Trinity's Casavant organ

The Casavant organ at Trinity holds a unique place in the community and region for organists because of its design. It is large enough to be eclectic and enable the performance of repertoire from the sixteenth century to the present day, as well as being of special importance for the performance of repertoire from nineteenth and twentieth century France. The tonal constituency of an organ has potential influences not only from different national organ building traditions from across Europe but also different centuries. As such, an organ designed along the lines of an instrument in seventeenth century Italy is very different to one built at the same time in England or Germany. As a consequence, students have to be familiar with the different styles of instruments from both different time periods and countries, most especially from the seventeenth century onwards.

The organ at Trinity is especially suited to the music of the French masters such as César Franck (1822-1890) and Olivier Messiaen (1908-1922). It is also an excellent instrument for the performance of more contemporary works. A few years ago, Professor Ellen Taaffe Zwilich, a member of the College of Music faculty and a recipient of the Pulitzer Prize for composition, visited Trinity to hear one of the organ students perform her sole organ work. Students in organ, composition, and music theory attended this performance which was followed by a discussion with Professor Zwilich on the performance practice of the piece.

The impact of the organ in communities is considerable and, in professional terms, it is often the instrument most often encountered in performances by the larger public because of weekly liturgies. As a consequence, the role of sacred music has often been central to the larger reception of classical music more broadly. In towns and cities across the country the great works of the canon, most especially the works of J. S. Bach, are heard every week. As we educate the next generation of musicians, the role that Trinity plays will continue to be important and indeed far-reaching. A recent doctoral graduate, Ariana Corbin, completed several of her degree recitals at Trinity. She is presently the Organ Scholar at Washington National Cathedral. In this role she was one of the organists for the state funeral of President Carter.

The collaboration with Trinity is significant not only for the pedagogical and performance aspects but also for the many personal connections that are shared between the two institutions. Charlie and Persis Rockwood were strong supporters of the organ program at FSU and contributed a $2.2M gift to the college for a new concert instrument that is currently under construction. Charlie often spoke about his appreciation for the Casavant organ and Trinity, and it is a wonderful memory to return and teach at Trinity knowing how much both institutions meant to a wonderful couple. As both institutions continue in their work within the community, this new agreement signifies not only collaboration but a thoughtful and meaningful approach to a shared vision for education and excellence.

Dr. Iain Quinn is an award-winning organist, composer, and cultural historian with over one hundred publications across multiple disciplines. He is Professor of Organ and Coordinator of Sacred Music at Florida State University, Research Fellow in the Arts and Humanities, and Director of the annual Festival of the Creative Arts in the Office of the Vice President for Research. He is an Honorary Research Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music.

Capital Area Justice Ministry Heads into a New Season

By Rachael Diaz, Trinity UMC CAJM Team Leader

If you have been around Trinity a while, you may have heard the acronym "CAJM" spoken a few times. CAJM stands for Capital Area Justice Ministry, a group of 22 interfaith congregations that are working together to answer the call of Micah 6:8 to do justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with God. We are people called to do justice, but what exactly is this justice we are talking about?

Justice is a complex topic, but in simple terms, we actively seek to ensure that all people are treated as God's beloved people by calling on those who have power to make changes to reduce injustice at its source. As the theologian Desmond Tutu states, "There comes a point where we need to stop just pulling people out of the river. We need to go upstream and find out why they're falling in." This is what CAJM seeks to do, and it starts with listening to all of our stories.

As we enter a new season of listening, the CAJM organization is also entering a new season. When the organization was formed, member congregations, including Trinity, chose to affiliate with a national network of community advocacy groups known as DART (Direct Action and Research Training Center). DART provides training and consultation on pursuing justice at the local level. The DART model is rigid in its structure and its processes. This model has proven effective in other communities, but in the four years that CAJM has been active, we have learned that one model doesn't always work for all. In light of this revelation, CAJM has decided to part ways with DART after finding success through focusing on authentic relationships and conversations. This upcoming season is an opportunity for the organization to determine what method of advocacy works best for our community and our people, and lean into it. CAJM leadership will continue to seek training on community organizing from other organizations.

October 28, 2025: Network Assembly
March 24, 2026: Pep Rally
April 21, 2026: Nehemiah Action
May 19, 2026: Celebration

Whether you are new to justice work or have been in this work a long time, you are invited to join us for the Curious about CAJM lunch and house meetings on October 5, 2025 in Moor Hall. House meetings are a time of building relationship and sharing our personal concerns about our beloved Tallahassee community. We will have house meetings at 10:45 a.m., lunch at 12:00 p.m., and additional house meetings at 1:00 p.m. During lunch, we will share a meal, hear updates from CAJM leaders, and have time for questions.

Your presence matters. Your stories matter. Come and see.

Trinity United Methodist Church joins with other faith communities in our area to form the larger network known as Capital Area Justice Ministry (CAJM). CAJM "is a diverse coalition of religious congregations and partners across the Tallahassee and surrounding area." Many congregations work cooperatively to answer the scriptural call to "Do Justice." To learn more about the CAJM network and/or to sign up to receive their newsletter, visit their website at capitalareajustice.org.

Story Fest at Trinity UMC: A Fun, Family-Filled Celebration of Books

By Candace Duclos, Senior Director of Christian Education, and Susan Koehler, Director of Communications

Books, books, and more books! That's the theme of our first-ever Story Fest at Trinity United Methodist Church. We want parents and children to gather with us in a celebration of stories.

On Friday, October 24, families are invited to join us in the Underground from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. There will be games, storytelling, read-alouds, snacks—and best of all—a book swap! That's right, we want you to bring a gently used book to share in the swap. That means you'll go home with a new-to-you book that your family can enjoy.

Of course, reading is not just for children. It's important that kids see their favorite role models reading. Parents, you can participate in a grown-up book swap by bringing a gently used book that you have enjoyed. That way, both kids and parents can go home excited about reading.

Here's what you can expect at the Story Fest:

- 6:00-6:25 - Food, game stations, and information
- 6:25-6:45 - Storytelling and Read-Aloud
- 6:45-7:00 - Wrap-up and Book Swap

We're asking that you please sign up for this event so we know how many people to expect. Sign up on the app or website, or simply scan the QR code on the tree on the right.

The Caroline Hart Memorial Children's Library

By Susan Koehler, Director of Communications

Did you know that Trinity UMC has a library collection specially dedicated to children's books? This collection resides in the church library on the first floor, adjacent to the Welcome Center. It is named for Carolyn Hart, a long-time elementary Sunday School superintendent who left a bequest to create a children's library at Trinity.

Colorful picture books, Bibles, and some reference materials appropriate for preschoolers and elementary-age children are available for check-out. The Children's Ministries page of our website provides more information about this collection along with a link to our searchable online catalogue.

You can also contact Church Librarian Gloria Colvin through our website. She would be happy to provide more information about books available for check-out for both children and adults.

Moor Hall Stage Renovation: “Prayer Quilt Meets Stained Glass”

By Alex Taylor, Contemporary Music Worship Leader

We’re excited to share that Moor Hall is getting a thoughtful refresh to its stage. It’s a renovation designed to honor tradition, welcome more light, and enhance both the in-person and online experience. The first step has been the removal of the partitions at the back of the stage, uncovering the large windows behind them. The back wall has also been freshly repainted.

Next, we are shifting the drum cage to stage right, opposite the piano, creating better balance and freeing up more flexible space. To frame the stage, semitransparent patchwork hangings will be installed across the back windows, as well as on two side light boxes. These hangings—our “prayer quilts”—inspired by stained glass, will soften the light and can be removed whenever the stage needs to be opened up entirely. We are excited to share this news with you and certainly hope to deliver a beautiful sanctuary space for the contemporary service.

Trinity Turns 201!

By Susan Koehler, Director of Communications

Our beloved church officially formed on the last Sunday in September of the year 1824. Although it began as a small missionary outpost in the new town of Tallahassee, Trinity United Methodist Church is now a vibrant place of worship, service, and fellowship in the heart of Florida’s capitol city. And, on the last Sunday in September 2025, Trinity quietly reached its 201st anniversary.

A brief flashback reminds us that our original Bicentennial Celebration, scheduled for September 29, 2024, had to be rescheduled in anticipation of Hurricane Helene. Disappointed but not deterred, we celebrated the big event on January 12, 2025. Ever grateful for those in our history who built the foundation upon which we stand, we look ahead to the future, planting the seeds that will sustain generations yet to come.

Memorable Guest Visits Yates Center

By Cecile Baker, Committee for Preservation of Church History Chair and Lynn McLarty, Church Historian

This month, the Yates Heritage Center in Trinity Hall welcomed a special guest, Bettie Moor Bedell. Bettie is the daughter of Beth and Frank Moor, the namesakes of Moor Hall. Her visit was a meaningful occasion not only for the Center but also for Bettie, as it allowed her to reconnect with her family's legacy.

During Bettie's visit, we located the original membership books. These historical records documented two significant milestones in Bettie's life: her baptism in 1931 and her formal membership in 1939. Seeing these records provided Bettie with a tangible connection to her family's longstanding involvement with Trinity. As Bettie reviewed the records, she made a remarkable discovery—the date of her baptism, October 19, was also her father's birthday. This unexpected coincidence added a special layer of significance to her visit, making the experience even more memorable.

Bettie Moor's baptismal record

In addition to exploring the membership records, Bettie was able to view many documents produced by her father during his lifelong association with Trinity. This opportunity allowed her to further appreciate the important contributions her family made to the church and its history. Although these records and much of Trinity's history can now be accessed online through www.tumcthistory.org, Bettie is looking forward to another visit to YHC to dig deeper into her families past here at Trinity.

BFC Celebrates 17 Years

By Beth Curry, BFC Team Leader

On Tuesday, September 2, 2008, eight members of Trinity United Methodist Church met in the Parlor for the very first BFC (Becoming Fit at Church) exercise class. Two days later there were twelve. And so it began at the request of and with inspiration from Dr. Orson Smith, and his lovely wife, Eleanor!

Last month, on Tuesday, September 2, 2025, BFC Exercise marked its 17th anniversary! Since that first day in 2008, over 425 people have participated in either BFC Exercise or BFO (Becoming Fit Outdoors) by attending exercise classes, walking with the Walk to Bethlehem group, walking at Cascades Park, hiking and biking local trails, or most recently joining our Pickleball group! And—what's even more amazing is over $95,000 has been raised from many faithful and generous contributions, most of which has gone to community service locally and globally.

This is a HUGE accomplishment!

To those who are attending now or have attended in the past—it is with a grateful heart that I thank YOU for your part in this journey. It simply could not have been achieved without YOU! HAPPY 17th ANNIVERSARY!!!

And to anyone who thinks they might like to become fit along with us, we are always open to new members! Find more information, schedules, and forms on the Adult Ministries page of our website.

Preschool News

By Erin Casey, Director of Preschool

Trinity's preschoolers have been busy during this transition to the fall season. In the VPK class, students have focused on music over the past month. They made their own instruments, sang songs, and enjoyed performances by local musicians. The toddlers learned to “walk by faith.” They painted their feet and walked across paper, creating a tangible connection to a spiritual principle.

The three-year-olds studied pets, and as an outreach activity, they collected supplies for a local animal shelter. Our friends and I checked every day to see how our donations grew and grew over these two weeks. We had so many donations to our Pet Supply Drive! Thank you so much if you donated! We sure are going to bless some lucky animals at the shelter.

During October, we will be closed on October 2 for a Fall Holiday and on October 13 for a Teacher Planning Day. As the month comes to an end, we're looking forward to our annual costume parade on October 31!
