Luke 15:24
King James Version

For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

It's a touching story that speaks to our own deep desire for forgiveness, and it reminds me of a story Jesus told. There, a young man leaves his father on a hunt for "wild living" but soon finds himself in trouble (Luke 15:13-14). When he "[comes] to his senses" and returns home (v. 17), his estranged father rushes to embrace him before he's even had a chance to apologize (v. 20). "This son of mine was dead and is alive again," the father cries in joy; "he was lost and is found" (v. 24). In this story, the father represents God, the son represents us, and heaven's joy is glimpsed when we too return to our heavenly Father.

In the bodily resurrection; eternal life for the believer, and eternal punishment for the unbeliever.
