Activity

This week, we discussed what a worldview is and compared a worldview to a map.

Explain to your family what a worldview is. Ask them if they can figure out how a worldview is similar to a map. If they can't do this, explain what you learned today!

As a family, draw two maps of your house—one map that is True and another map that is not.

Look at the map that is not correct. Discuss what might happen if someone believed the map was True and used it to get around your house.

How is this similar to a worldview? What might happen if we believe things that are not True about who we are or how we are supposed to live?
