Sermon Series

Deeply Rooted November 9 – November 23

In an age when the world’s problems can feel overwhelming and immovable, we are called to trust that our small, faithful acts can move mountains over time. In seasons of social turbulence and upheaval, when everything feels unsteady, we need deep roots—an anchor that holds us firmly in faith, community, and courage. This series explores how daily commitment to faithful, merciful, and generous living strengthens our inner reserves—ensuring we remain unshaken by life’s challenges.

Sermon Reflection

Words for Meditation: “The deeper we sink our roots into God, the freer we become. Free from the tyranny of circumstances. Free from the anxiety of self-sufficiency. Free to bear fruit even in darkness and drought, when everything around us suggests we might wither.” — Rev. Mark Feldmeir

Today’s Questions

- What are you currently rooted in?

Take an honest inventory: When anxiety strikes or circumstances shift, where do you instinctively turn for stability—your accomplishments, others’ opinions, your own strength, or God’s presence and grace? What would it look like to transfer your roots from these temporary sources to the deeper, more reliable stream of God’s presence and grace?

Today’s Takeaways

1. Deep roots _____ us through inevitable _____.
2. The _____ we sink our roots, the _____ we become.
3. The _____ life is the _____ life.
