

Jeff Boldman – Testimony

I grew up in a Christian Family. I knew what was right, but I resisted. As a teenager, my best friend's father was a minister. While I attended church, I still resisted.

I was married in church and my wife, and I raised our two wonderful kids. We attended church sporadically throughout those years.

My good friend and neighbor told me I was the most Christian man he knew because of the way my wife and I were devoted to each other and our family.

But I still resisted.

My son went through a very dark time, and I blamed myself. My friend Jon Wilkerson talked to me and fellowshiped me with through this time.

Then one day he invited me to come to his church, Lighthouse Baptist Church.

The Sunday I went, Pastor Josh gave his sermon on "Forgiveness" and that prompted me to self-reflection. That was the day I realized I was buying a first-class ticket to Hell. I gave myself to God and when I did all the weight was lifted off my shoulders! I finally knew peace.

I owe it all to God.

A passage that means a lot to me is Psalm 46:10:

"Be still and know that I am God"
