

Jennifer Crawford – Testimony

Before becoming a Christian, I was an active Catholic. I was more just going through the motions than actually believing what I was doing. I thought it was okay to live a life of sin as long as I went to confession to ask forgiveness. After some sudden and unexpected deaths of relatives I discovered some cracks in the teachings of the Catholics. I then began attending services of various denominations to see where I could find truth. My now husband ultimately lead me to the truth of the gospel and I was re-baptized by full immersion a few months before our wedding in 2024.

We have been attending since April of 2025. My husband locked himself out of our house and the locksmith that he called invited us to join the church. We went a couple times and eventually started to attend small group where we made friends and felt like this is where we wanted to be.
