THOUGHTS ON THE JOURNEY

Have you ever said, I will try to make time for that? Or maybe you have said, I just can't find the time to do the things I need to do. These are all comments that reflect the fact that we are overcommitted. It is such a common thing in our culture today that we think little of it. It is the norm to have every minute of every day committed to something. Unfortunately, it is not healthy physically or spiritually.

“Time is a gift from God.
Just like money, it is to be managed.”

Today, we will look at the call of scripture to be very intentional about our use of time. We are told to, “make the best use of time.” Have you ever asked that question of yourself? Have you stopped to assess whether or not you are making the best use of your time? That is a tough question. By what standard do we measure that?

My encouragement for you today is to look at your life and schedule. The big thing I want you to consider is whether or not you have margin built into your life. Is there time for God? Is there time for the reading of the Bible? Is there time for prayer? Is there time to throw the ball with the kids out in the yard? If time was money, as they say, would you have any in savings or would you be broke?

Time is a gift from God. Just like money, it is to be managed. We do not often think of a time budget, but maybe we should. Maybe there are some things to which we should begin to say no. It is not always easy, but if we do not manage our time, it will manage us. So, let's begin the process of reclaiming our time, so that we might be all God has called us to be.

Honored to be your pastor,
