THOUGHTS ON THE JOURNEY

Today is the day for which we have prayed, longed, and waited. A long and winding road has led us straight back home. Today, Stephen Summers will stand In View of a Call for the role of Worship Pastor at Northside Baptist Church. I hope that you will be praying for him, Jody, Anna, Leigh, and Olivia. We know that God does not just call a man, he calls the family.

“Ministers are dependent upon the congregation to hold us up in prayer.”

This will be a season of transition for Stephen and his family. They will experience new things, new joys, and new excitement. However, they will also experience new challenges, struggles, and disappointments. I know that you will be committed to pray for them and encourage them in the days ahead. Just as Aaron and Hur held Moses’ weary arms up (Exodus 17:12), ministers are dependent upon the congregation to hold us up in prayer.

As I take a moment to consider the last 18 months, I have to be honest and say that it has been a challenge. There have been times that were frustrating and disappointing. There have been times that were gut wrenching and difficult. There have been times that I have questioned my own call to Northside and wondered if I should look to move elsewhere. However, there have also been times of encouragement and hope. There have been times where people have rallied, and God has provided and that brought encouragement as well. In the end, I see that God was in it all.

I believe strongly that God was working in Stephen and in Northside. At the beginning of this process, I do not think either of us would have thought we would end up here. God was doing a work. It is with total confidence that I can tell you, I believe God has brought us to this point. I trust that the days ahead will be a testament to God’s sovereign work in our midst.

Honored to be your pastor,

DARRELL

TAKE ACTION

Have you ever sensed a call to vocational ministry? If not vocational ministry, have you sensed a call from God in general? Have you been obedient to this call? If not, what is holding you back?
