THOUGHTS ON THE JOURNEY

So far, we have considered three prayers: Lord, disturb me; Lord, search me; and Lord, break me. Today we come to what might seem like the least threatening of all the prayers; Lord, send me. However, this is not a safe prayer, either. The idea of surrendering ourselves to the will of God and allowing Him to send us wherever He sees fit, is a scary proposition.

“Instead, we are praying to a God that deeply cares about us on a personal level.”

Hopefully, as we progress through these prayers, we will gain more and more courage. As we realize that we are not praying to some heartless deity that has no concern for our good. Instead, we are praying to a God that deeply cares about us on a personal level. It is why scripture tells us, in Romans 8:28 that, “for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose.”

Wherever you find yourself today, I hope that you will trust God to work His process in your life. Maybe you need to pray, “Lord, disturb me,” asking God to stir you up to pray and seek His face. Maybe you need to pray, “Lord, search me,” asking him to sift through your heart and find anything that is displeasing to Him. Maybe you are to the point you can pray, “Lord, break me,” finally removing whatever it is that might hold you back. Or, you may be to the point you can now say, “Lord, send me,” seeking His will for what the rest of your life will look like. Again, let God have His work in you.

This morning, as we consider the story of Esther, ask yourself, “What big thing might God have me to do that I have been to afraid to pursue?” Are you like Esther and afraid of the consequences? Do you feel unworthy? Do you find yourself leaning toward self-preservation? Whatever the case, allow God to move you past your place of comfort.

Honored to be your pastor,

DARRELL
