This sermon on The Baptism of Jesus from Matthew 3:13–17 explores how Christ’s baptism revealed His identity and offers a model for believers to follow. Though sinless, Jesus chose to be baptized to fulfill righteousness, aligning Himself with John the Baptist’s message, affirming the gospel, and identifying with those who seek God through repentance. His baptism was not about personal guilt but about openly declaring who He was, what He believed, and with whom He stood. Through divine confirmation—the descent of the Spirit and the voice from heaven—Jesus was affirmed as God’s beloved Son. In response, the sermon challenges listeners to believe in Christ, be baptized not only as a symbol of personal salvation but as an expression of alignment with the church and its doctrine, and to publicly live out their Christian identity with humility, obedience, and distinction from worldly values.
