MISSION FOCUS

Jonathan & Kathy Wilson serving with Wycliffe Bible Translators – Papua New Guinea

PNG celebrated fifty years since receiving their independence from Australia! The nation took three public holidays to sing, dance and enjoy such an important event. We feel blessed to live in PNG and have freedom to worship and serve God here in such a remote but beautiful country. We hope to stick around another few field terms and finish the life work God has called us to do. Jonathan is working out his Binandere Phonology paper, section by section. He's working on diphthongs and word stress. A young linguist has volunteered to come beside him to assist where he is able. There is no other linguist that knows the Binandere sound system and grammar better than Jonathan; it's totally in his ballpark. He will have a good chunk of this required paper written soon as he needs to move on with his other work. He will be preparing Revelation scripture portions to be village checked for our next January trip to the village. We have been praying about fighting over land rights where gold has been found. The fighting between these two clans could really have an impact on the entire Binandere people group. Peace talks are happening and both pigs and money will likely be exchanged. This will be for compensation for the destruction of village houses and loss of life which occurred during the feud. We are praying and trusting God for peace among these two clans. We truly do love our work here in PNG and never find time to be bored. As a community service four high school guys came to clean our house eave's troughs (feeding into our water tank) and washed off our solar panel (which provides us with hot water). I tried out a new cinnamon coffee cake recipe from Starbucks and those teen guys came back for seconds and thirds! Guess the recipe is a keeper Thank you for all your prayers, support and encouragement.
