

Honoring Pastor's Wives this Sunday

Behind every pastor who faithfully serves, there is often a wife who quietly bears the unseen weight of ministry. She is the one who shares her husband's calling, offering encouragement when he is weary, prayer when he is burdened, and joy when he sees God at work.

Her ministry is often behind the scenes—listening ears, whispered prayers, acts of kindness, and steadfast faith that strengthens not only her husband but the whole church family. Proverbs 31 reminds us of such women: "Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praises her" (Proverbs 31:28).

Today we pause to give thanks for pastor's wives—for their courage, grace, sacrifice, and unwavering love for Christ and His people. May the Lord bless them abundantly, strengthen their hearts, and remind them that their labor in the Lord is not in vain (1 Cor. 15:58).
