Jennifer's Story: From Fear to Hope

When Jennifer first came to our clinic, she was scared and unsure of what to do. A bilingual staff member helped translate as she shared that she wanted an abortion—she already had two daughters and didn't feel she could financially provide for another child. To make things harder, the father of the baby told her he would leave if she continued the pregnancy.

During her appointment, an ultrasound revealed she was seven weeks along, and a heartbeat was detected. In Georgia, that meant abortion was no longer an option. When her Patient Care Advocate told her about Bridge and our baby boutique, Jennifer began to cry—there was finally a glimmer of hope.

Although her boyfriend left, Jennifer chose life for her baby and began attending Bridge classes, even though she spoke very little English. She quickly connected with other Hispanic moms who helped her translate and learn. Her baby boy will celebrate his first birthday next month, and her two daughters love attending our Bridge Kids program.

Through a Beacon connection, Jennifer started attending church and has found a strong, loving community there. She's also close to finishing her GED program so she can find better job opportunities and continue providing for her children.

Every single Bridge class, Jennifer thanks our team for everything Beacon has done for her and her family. Her story is a powerful reminder that when we meet women with compassion and resources, lives are changed—one family at a time.
