The Sweetest Thing I Heard This Week

Thanksgiving is just around the corner. On Wednesday, our five year old grandson Judah went to his preschool and was given an assignment, draw a picture of what he is thankful for. The teacher took the drawings and posted them on the wall. When my daughter picked him up Judah proudly showed his mom the picture that he drew. It looked a little like a blob. Judah explained, "I'm thankful for my brother Jordan."

Judah and Jordan are about two years apart. They spat just like you think brothers would. One of them will take a toy from the other one. One of them will hit the other one for taking their toy. They fight over who gets to go first. Even though they are from the same gene pool, in some ways they could not be more different. Judah is a doer,; Jordan is a thinker. Judah is emotional; Jordan is contemplative. Judah is a meat eater; Jordan is a vegetable eater. Judah is an early riser; Jordan is a night owl. Yet, when Judah was asked to draw a picture of one thing he was thankful for, he drew his brother.

Therefore, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all people, especially to those who belong to the family of believers. Galatians 6:10

The church could learn a lesson from Judah. When you are saved you are added to the church. Translation, you, now, have a whole new family of brothers and sisters. Are we different? You bet. Some people like the old hymns; some people like the new praise songs. Some people like to express themselves in worship; some people are more stoic. Some people are freezing during worship; some people are fanning themselves. Some people want the exact same order of worship every Sunday; some people need to have some spontaneity. But what is more important than all of those things is the fact that we are family. We are all adopted. We all fall way short of perfection. And we were all saved by the same Savior. So let's be thankful for the family we have.
