

Give Thanks

“And what are you thankful for this year?” This is the question that we ask each other when we gather around the table for our Thanksgiving meal. At least we always have in our family. The answers to that question can range anywhere from surface to deeply emotional. Surface answers can be something like a new toy or a new car. Deeply emotional answers can be something like being thankful that my loved one didn’t suffer when they passed or, my answer from four years ago, thankful that the cancer in my body was found and removed quickly. As important and heartfelt as those answers are, we may still be missing the point of what it means to be truly thankful.

Enter his gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise; give thanks to him and praise his name. Psalm 100:4

What does it mean to enter His gates and His courts? It simply means to come into the presence of God. Stop and think for a moment what it would be like to enter in to a place where God is present. Would you take that moment to thank God for a car or any other earthly treasure? Would you even thank God for relief from some earthly type of suffering? Or would you instead thank God and praise Him for who He is? Psalm 100 is a short psalm but within the few verses it gives us a few reasons that we should be truly thankful to God. Verse 3 says that we should be thankful because our Lord is God, we should be thankful because He made each of us, and we should be thankful because we are His people. Verse 5 says that we should be thankful because of His goodness, we should be thankful because His love endures forever, and we should be thankful because He has and always will be faithful.

Thanksgiving is only one day a year. Our thankfulness to God needs to permeate our lives every day of the year. Take the time to give thanks to the one who is worthy.

From the Pew

As we bring our different backgrounds and levels of spiritual maturity together, God shapes us for good works and is preparing us for greater service. When we stay focused on Him, He strengthens us, and continues to grow His church through each of us.
