WORDS FROM ETHAN...

Romans 14:1 “As for the one who is weak in faith, welcome him, but not to quarrel over opinions.”

There is a lot of difficulty when it comes to overcoming differing opinions with others. Culture only fuels this fire by elevating subjective truth and diminishing absolute truth. The consequences of subjective truth lead to division and unsettled grudges. Paul, in his letter to the church at Rome, acknowledges that arguments surrounding opinions will produce the same outcomes of division and unsettled grudges. Paul expresses that the one who is weak in faith needs to see the unity of glorifying Christ and feel the love of Christ through members of Christ’s body. He says put all of your differences and disagreements over unimportant/petty things aside, and focus on what is most important. When faith is weak, division will only weaken that faith, even in those who have an established faith. The division of Christians will hurt the church, which is why Paul is counseling these Christians at the church of Rome to drop the unimportant and pick up the important aspect of creating unity within the church. Christ’s example pursued unity and love for others through everything. The cross that Christ died on leaves us no excuse not to love in exactly the same ways He loved people. Do I go out of my way to promote unity in the church? How unconditional is my love towards others?

PERSPECTIVE

By Hugh Fulford

PERSPECTIVE is always a valuable commodity. It is needed where the restoration movement is concerned. We must be careful to not canonize the restoration leaders or the restoration movement. I think I see some effort to do this, especially where Stone and Campbell are concerned. I read a lot about the Stone-Campbell this, that, and the other. Stone and Campbell were not the only men pleading for a return to the New Testament order of things. They were not the only able men in the movement to restore apostolic undenominational Christianity. We must be careful to not see “the Stone-Campbell Movement” as the origin of “our church.” It is not “our church” in which we should be interested, but the church of the New Testament. Stone, Campbell, Scott, Smith, et al were not our “founders.” Christ was the founder of the church and it is the church of the New Testament of which I am a member by virtue of my obedience to the gospel (Acts 2:37-47).

I believe in the restoration principle. It is a valid and biblical principle. I believe in the restoration plea and the restoration movement, but my membership is in the church of our Lord and that alone. The restoration movement is not the end, but the means to an end—the true church of the New Testament. Write about “our” history all we care to. Collect all the trivia and artifacts from “our” history that you care to. But be very careful not to build up a denominational view of the church—“our fellowship,” “our tradition,” “our heritage,” “the Stone-Campbell fellowship,” “the Restoration Movement churches,” etc. I am a Christian, not a Campbellite! I am a member of the body of Christ, the church—not a denomination that originated in the early 19th century.

Doing Nothing

Yesterday I had nothing to do I didn't finish, so I'm doing it again today. It isn't a very worthy project, But I keep doing it anyway.

There are other things I could be doing Like laundry, cooking, or house cleaning. But since I learned to do nothing, Those things don't have much meaning.

You may think my age is a factor. I don't think that's necessarily so. I see people of all ages Doing nothing wherever I go.

It has become a national pastime. I can't say how it got its start. I just know that many people Have doing nothing down to an art.

Now, I don't know if its' right or wrong. If that's q question you were going to ask. I do know you can do nothing every day And you will never finish the task.
