BEYOND THE WHITEBOARD

In my 5th grade classroom, structure and creativity come together to create an active, engaging environment where students don't just complete lessons, they experience them. I design movement-based activities like "Scoot" review games, reading rotations, and interactive notebooks that encourage deep thinking and student ownership, all while building a strong classroom community rooted in respect and support. Knowing each child personally is a priority for me, so I greet students by name every morning, celebrate their successes, and connect learning to their unique interests so they feel seen, known, and excited to learn. Parents are often impressed by our interactive routines, from beginning each day with Bible time and Morning Meeting to staying hands-on with spelling and math games, creative book projects, and memorable experiences like our Riley's Farm Revolutionary War field trip. These meaningful practices help my students grow not only academically but also in confidence, curiosity, teamwork, joy, skills and qualities they will carry far beyond 5th grade. Mrs. Hager~5th Grade
