How to Use This Study

Preparation

- Watch the teaching tip video for each session at ministrygrid.com/gospelproject.
- Read through the main passage of Scripture used on the opening page of each session.
- Study the His Story section, focusing on which aspects of the study you will cover during group time.
- Decide which Intro Option to use to start the lesson.
- Check each session for a pack item list or description.

Intro Options

The opening pages of each session contain the focal passages of Scripture covered, the main point to be emphasized throughout the session, and two introductory options to help get the session started.

His Story

These four pages contain the main teaching material for each session. This section follows the storyline of the Bible, focusing on what God has done in redemptive history throughout the pages of Scripture. It's important to study this section and decide beforehand which parts of the material to emphasize to students to support the main idea of the session. In addition, these pages also contain discussion questions for your group time. Most of these questions will be observational or personal response type questions; for those that are not, the surrounding paragraphs in the Teaching Plan or Commentary can provide suggested answers.

The His Story section is divided into two parts: the Teaching Plan (left side) and the Commentary (right side).

- The Teaching Plan is designed to help you lead the session material, providing biblical content and instructions for how to read the biblical passages and ask related questions.
- The Commentary is additional material that complements the Teaching Plan. The material found on this page will give you additional insight into the biblical text and help you better prepare to lead each session. However, leaders must decide how to use the content here during group time.

The Gospel Project for Students

Our journey for this quarter picks up where we left off in Genesis—with the account of Jacob and his family. Jacob carried a lot of the dysfunction he inherited from his own upbringing with his brother and parents into his new family. The manipulation, deceit, and favoritism continued through Jacob and his sons, particularly with the way Jacob favored Joseph. As we explore the remaining chapters of Genesis, we get an outside perspective on how God orchestrated and turned what were likely horrific circumstances for Joseph into something good and beautiful in the end. We get to witness what reconciliation looks like between two very estranged parties (Joseph and his brothers). And we also are able to consider how so much of Joseph's life and suffering point to Jesus' life and suffering.

The story of Joseph teaches us a lot, for sure, but it also provides the backdrop to what we see in the Book of Exodus. The Book of Exodus, just like Genesis, is packed with new revelations of who God is and His mission to rescue people. We will not only know Him as Creator and Covenant-Maker, but also as Rescuer and Redeemer. We will not only witness His grace in delivering the Israelites out of bondage in Egypt, but also His desire to make them into a people who display His glory and goodness to the surrounding nations.

While the biblical storyline contained in the Book of Exodus is crucial for understanding the overarching storyline of the Bible, it doesn't stop there. Sure, we learn some important history in the biblical timeline, but we also retrospectively get to see how the exodus out of Egypt overlaps with our own exodus out of sin and corruption. The Book of Exodus shows not only how the Israelites came to know God on His own terms, but also illuminates how we are brought into fellowship with God through His own means of rescue and redemption in Jesus. Thus, far from being only a record of history, the Book of Exodus opens our eyes to our own desperate need of God's mercy and deliverance.

About the Authors

Matt Chandler (unit 4, sessions 4-6; unit 5, session 1) is a Lead Pastor at The Village Church, president of Acts 29, and author of several books, including Take Heart: Christian Courage in the Age of Unbelief. Matt and his wife, Lauren, have three children: Audrey, Reid, and Norah.

Jennifer Grisham (unit 6, sessions 1-2) serves as managing editor and administrator at Doxology & Theology. She's a graduate of Baylor University and is currently pursuing a masters degree at The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Andrew Hall (unit 6, session 3) is the Lead Pastor of Community Bible Church, located in Ilderton, Ontario, Canada. He is a graduate from Southern Seminary. He and his wife, Melanie, have four children: Noelle, Ava, Calvin, and Brita.

Pat Hood (unit 5, sessions 2-3) is the Senior Pastor at LifePoint Church in Tennessee. He and his wife, Amy, have five children. Pat is the author of The Sending Church, which challenges every church to send and every Christian to live sent.

Sung Jin Park (Bonus session) and his wife, Alice, have three kids. He is Associate Professor of Biblical Studies at Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and earned a PhD from Hebrew Union College–Jewish Institute of Religion.

David Roark (unit 4, sessions 4-6; unit 5, session 1) is the Communications and Resources Director at The Village Church and writes on faith and culture in notable publications. He and his wife, Taylor, have two daughters: Leigh and Lainey.

Robert Smith Jr. (unit 4, sessions 1-3), PhD, is the Charles T. Carter Baptist Chair of Divinity at Beeson Divinity School. He is the author of Doctrine That Dances and The Oasis of God. He is married to Wanda Taylor-Smith (PhD), and they have four adult children and one in heaven.

Scripture

Genesis 37:3-8,18-28

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than his other sons because Joseph was a son born to him in his old age, and he made a robe of many colors for him. 4 When his brothers saw that their father loved him more than all his brothers, they hated him and could not bring themselves to speak peaceably to him. 5 Then Joseph had a dream. When he told it to his brothers, they hated him even more. 6 He said to them, “Listen to this dream I had: 7 There we were, binding sheaves of grain in the field. Suddenly my sheaf stood up, and your sheaves gathered around it and bowed down to my sheaf.” 8 “Are you really going to reign over us?” his brothers asked him. “Are you really going to rule us?” So they hated him even more because of his dream and what he had said. ... 18 They saw him in the distance, and before he had reached them, they plotted to kill him. 19 They said to one another, “Oh, look, here comes that dream expert! 20 So now, come on, let’s kill him and throw him into one of the pits. We can say that a vicious animal ate him. Then we’ll see what becomes of his dreams!” 21 When Reuben heard this, he tried to save him from them. He said, “Let’s not take his life.” 22 Reuben also said to them, “Don’t shed blood. Throw him into this pit in the wilderness, but don’t lay a hand on him”—intending to rescue him from them and return him to his father. 23 When Joseph came to his brothers, they stripped off Joseph’s robe, the robe of many colors that he had on. 24 Then they took him and threw him into the pit. The pit was empty, without water. 25 They sat down to eat a meal, and when they looked up, there was a caravan of Ishmaelites coming from Gilead. Their camels were carrying aromatic gum, balsam, and resin, going down to Egypt. 26 Judah said to his brothers, “What do we gain if we kill our brother and cover up his blood? 27 Come on, let’s sell him to the Ishmaelites and not lay a hand on him, for he is our brother, our own flesh,” and his brothers agreed. 28 When Midianite traders passed by, his brothers pulled Joseph out of the pit and sold him for twenty pieces of silver to the Ishmaelites, who took Joseph to Egypt.

Intro Options

Remember, this icon means there is a Leader Pack item that goes with the lesson. See Leader Pack for additional instructions.

Main Point:
The sin of favoritism and jealousy continue in Jacob's family.

Option 1

Memories are powerful. A sight, sound, or smell can transport us back to a specific time or place. While some memories are pleasant—being in your grandmother's kitchen, scoring a game-winning touchdown, or going on that first date—some are not. Sometimes memories evoke deep pain, heartache, and sorrow, especially when they were born in childhood. Many of us carry these scars for years, sometimes for the rest of our lives.

- What are some of the best memories you have from childhood? Is there anything that triggers those memories (a certain smell, hearing a specific song, seeing a shaggy dog, etc.)?

Joseph was a man well acquainted with days full of pain, heartache, and sorrow. While his father, Jacob, favored him and lavished him with love and gifts, his brothers detested him. Their jealousy and bitterness would lead them to betray him, sell him into slavery, and tell their father he was dead. As Joseph was led away in chains, the first domino had fallen, but it would not be the last. Joseph's life would be a series of one difficult event leading to another. Betrayal led to slavery. Slavery led to imprisonment. Moments of hope were mixed in, but these moments were fleeting. They would give way to disappointment and years of desperation.

Option 2

Give each student a piece of paper. Instruct students to title the page Five Favorites and ask them to come up with their top five favorite celebrities. (These may include people who are “social media famous” as well as musicians, actors, comedians, and other public figures.) Then, place students in groups and ask them to come up with an answer to these questions:

- How might being someone's favorite celebrity negatively affect that person?
- How does favoritism negatively affect the person “playing favorites”?

Although our favorite celebrities may not notice when one person unfollows them or leaves a nasty comment, our answers to these two questions can give us some insight into the way Joseph's story started. Jacob played favorites, which led to jealousy, brothers turning against one another, and a world of hurt and anxiety for this family.

TEACHING PLAN

Read Genesis 37:3-8.

Activity

Ask students do a thought experiment in where they imagine that they have 12 brothers (or sisters). Ask them questions like these: If you could pick where you were in the birth order, where would it be? What would the benefits be for having that many siblings? What challenges might exist? Add any additional questions that might get your students thinking about Joseph's family circumstances in light of what he was facing.

Jacob's special treatment of Joseph was wonderful for him, but disastrous for Jacob's other sons. Joseph's brothers hated him, and Joseph didn't help the situation when he told his brothers about his dream in which their sheaves of grain bowed to his. The meaning of the dream was not lost on the brothers: They would one day bow to Joseph. Sharing this dream may not have been the best idea for Joseph; his brothers did not respond with great joy, realizing there was a seer in their midst. Instead, they hated him more because of the dream.

▪ How has favoritism harmed you or others in a family, at school, or in some other setting?

Our biblical ancestors often had reasons for their preferences: God told Rebekah He had chosen Jacob over Esau and Jacob bargained with Lot for Rachel, not Leah (Gen. 25:23; 29:18). However, favoritism can never be justified. Favoritism is a sin. Favoritism says one person is worth more than others—a claim that undermines the image of God in each of us. God had a special plan for Joseph, which is apparent merely by the number of chapters covering his life in Genesis. But God also had plans for Jacob's other sons. The Messiah, after all, would not come from Joseph's line, but Judah's. God calls on us to see the worth He has given to each person and to love without partiality. This is why favoritism is so harmful. Knowing you are loved less than another brings about pain, hatred, and strife.

▪ Why is it important that we affirm the image of God in all people?

The journey from Joseph's dreams to the fulfillment of God's plan would be long and difficult. But it's important to see how his dreams set the stage for the conclusion of Genesis. God's overarching plan was to bless the entire world through Abraham's offspring. Joseph's dreams gave a glimpse of this plan coming to fruition at the end of Genesis because, through Joseph's exaltation above his brothers and father, God would not only rescue Israel, but He would also rescue the surrounding people groups.

99 Essential Doctrines (p. 8, DDG)

Temptation and Sin

Temptation is not the equivalent of sin. Temptation can refer to natural and good desires that are twisted and directed toward pleasing of self rather than giving glory to God. Jesus was tempted like we are (Matt. 4), and yet He never sinned, but faithfully resisted temptation and followed the will of His Father. Knowing our weakness, we are to be on guard against temptation that may lead us to sin (Matt. 26:41), and we pray for God to deliver us from evil (Matt. 6:13).

COMMENTARY

Main Point:
The sin of favoritism
and jealousy continue in
Jacob's family.

Genesis 37

37:2-8. If Jacob had nothing else going for him, at least he was consistent. Jacob didn't try to hide his favoritism of Rachel over Leah or his preference of Joseph over his other sons. The multi-colored robe Jacob gave Joseph was an obvious symbol of the love he had for the son born to his favorite wife, Rachel. It also drew the attention and jealousy of his other sons. This robe may have been more than a gift to a favored son. It may have signified Jacob's choice of Joseph to lead the family after him.<sup>1</sup> Maybe Jacob chose Joseph for this honor, rationalizing that he was the firstborn son of Rachel, the woman Jacob loved. Joseph was the firstborn who really counted. Or maybe Jacob cast aside the cultural norm of his day and chose Joseph just like God had chosen him for the firstborn privileges over his older brother Esau. While we can't be sure this is what Jacob intended by giving Joseph the multi-colored robe, Jacob placing Joseph in the role of a supervisor over his brothers supports the possibility (Gen. 37:12-17).

37:9-11. Joseph then recounted a second dream in which the sun, moon, and eleven stars bowed to him (Gen. 37:9-11). This time his brothers wouldn't need to respond to Joseph; Jacob would. Jacob rebuked Joseph for implying that he, Joseph's mother, and the brothers would bow to him.

Maybe Jacob's response validated how Joseph's brothers felt about him. It's possible that their father's rebuke of the favored son fueled what would happen later. Surely, it didn't help the situation. Jacob's rebuking Joseph showed his brothers that even a favored son is not exempt from discipline. By this time, the brothers' jealousy and anger were rooted in their minds and hearts. The situation was growing more precarious, waiting for a spark to set off a violent explosion.

In Defense (p. 9, DDG)

Skeptics try to use the existence of evil and suffering as an argument to prove God doesn't exist. Why doesn't this argument work? They would need to prove God doesn't have good reasons to permit evil and suffering in our world, which is difficult since we are not omniscient like God. What's more interesting is that atheists who reject God on the basis of evil in the world actually hurt their argument in the end. Think about it: If you do away with God, then you do away with objective goodness; if you do away with objective goodness, you do away with its opposite (evil). By rejecting God, the atheist has no leg to stand on when making moral pronouncements like "human trafficking is wrong" or "racism is bad."

TEACHING PLAN

Despite the suffering Joseph would experience, God would use the terrible circumstances to exalt Joseph and save his family (along with many others). God gave the family a picture of this plan through Joseph's dreams. It's not surprising that Joseph's brothers did not like the plan, but the dreams pointed to the way God would save them from famine and certain death.

- We can learn from Joseph's brothers. No matter how much we may not like what God is doing, we can trust that God's plan for our future is better than any plan we can come up with for ourselves. What are some dreams you have for your future? How might God's plans be better?

At some point after Joseph shared his dreams with his family, his brothers went into the fields with their father's flocks. Jacob sent Joseph to report back on his brothers. But when they saw Joseph in the distance, his brothers recognized an opportunity to rid themselves of the one they hated so much.

Read Genesis 37:18-22.

Joseph's brothers were blinded by jealousy, hatred, and strife. Jacob was apparently blind as well, since he naively sent Joseph to report on his brothers, not knowing the danger that awaited his favorite son. The doting father had given his vengeful sons the opportunity they needed against his beloved son. In Proverbs 27:4, King Solomon warned, "Fury is cruel, and anger a flood, but who can withstand jealousy?" Joseph and Jacob would soon see the wisdom of Solomon's warning.

- Why can jealousy be more harmful than anger or fury?

Read Genesis 37:23-28.

Jacob's oldest son, Reuben, asked his brothers not to kill Joseph and to cast him into a pit instead. However, Reuben's stand against murder was not enough. He failed to stand for his brother. He, and every other brother there that day, failed to defend Joseph and call the other brothers to turn away from their sin. Without saying or doing anything, the brothers found another opportunity to sin against their brother, their father, and, above all, their God.

In the end, the brothers did not murder Joseph—at least not with their hands. But they did murder him in their hearts (Matt. 5:21-26), as they sold him into slavery. Joseph's brothers devised an evil plan, but God works all things together for good—even the brother's jealousy, bitterness, and betrayal. God would bring about redemptive reversal—using the brother they cast aside and sold into slavery to preserve their lives in a foreign land. Joseph had to get to Egypt to stand before Pharaoh. Once there, he would use his God-given ability to interpret dreams to help Pharaoh prepare for the coming famine. God used the brothers' sin of selling Joseph into slavery to position Joseph to save the lives of the very ones who reviled him for being a dreamer and to preserve the line of the coming Messiah. On that day, the brothers would indeed bow to Joseph as he had dreamed.

- What can make us envy God's plan for someone else rather than accept the one He has laid out for us?
- How have you seen God turn around situations for His glory and our good?

COMMENTARY

Main Point:
The sin of favoritism
and jealousy continue in
Jacob's family.

Genesis 37

37:21-22. We don't know why, but Reuben interceded for Joseph and convinced his brothers not to kill him. Reuben probably saw himself as a hero. He was saving his brother's life, intending to rescue him later. We might want to applaud Reuben's actions here—it was good that he saved Joseph's life. But notice his counter offer: throw Joseph—their brother—into a pit.

Before we credit Reuben for what he said and did for Joseph, we should consider what he failed to say and do. What he should have said and done. Reuben should have rebuked his brothers. He should have called on them to repent of their sin of jealousy and hatred and for even considering murdering their brother. He should have demanded that they receive Joseph with open arms rather than an open pit. But it wasn't just Reuben who should have done this. Each of the other brothers was accountable for his failure to come to his brother's defense—the defense Joseph deserved and needed, not a defense contingent on going along with the brothers only to trick them later. But the sin of jealousy had led each of them to view their brother Joseph no differently than they would an animal. Joseph was not a brother. He was not a person. He was an obstacle.

37:26-28. Once again, we might be tempted to credit Judah for remembering that Joseph was their brother and echoing Reuben's call for them not to murder him. But Reuben had wanted the brothers to throw Joseph into a pit so Reuben could rescue him later and then return him to their father. Maybe he was motivated by his father's praise. Here, Judah offered selling Joseph as a slave in place of killing him. Judah saw Joseph was worth enough not to take his life, but not worth more than twenty pieces of silver, divided between the brothers. It's also possible he was motivated by his own greed.

(p. 10, DDG) Christ Connection

Joseph was his father's beloved son who was betrayed by his own brothers and sold into slavery. Jesus is the Father's beloved Son who was betrayed by His own and died on the cross to rescue us from our sin.

Our Mission

God's Story has always been designed to connect with our story. It is because of His Story that our stories make sense, have meaning, and carry on into eternity. Use the questions below to help think through how His Story connects with your own. Suggested answers to these questions can be found on the right-hand side of the page for leaders.

Head

How does Joseph's story so far challenge our understanding of suffering in the Christian life?

Which is better: to never have to suffer or to know and experience the presence of God in life, through the good times and bad? Why?

Heart

What are some ways you intentionally put a strain on your body in order to be better prepared for the future? How can the same truth apply to our character?

What challenges have you faced that prepared you to handle future challenges and blessings?

Hands

What makes it challenging for us as God's people to take a stand against sin in our culture?

How might spending more time in God's Word motivate us to stand against sin and for the gospel?

Main Point: The sin of favoritism and jealousy continue in Jacob's family.

Head

Too many Christians have the false idea that if God is with us, then nothing bad will happen. We think of verses like Romans 8:31—“If God is for us, who is against us?”—as if they promise life without adversity. But we leave out the verses that say we may experience suffering, famine, nakedness, peril, and many other obstacles (8:35-39). Rightly understood, nothing can separate you from God and His love in Christ, not because He shields you from bad things but rather because in the midst of those circumstances, He walks with you. He brings you safely through to the other side.

We are tempted in the tough moments to question if God is with us, but the Bible assures us that He never leaves nor forsakes His people. Our hope is not in a God who keeps bad things from happening to us; our hope is in a God who is with us in life and death, a God who sees to it that nothing separates us from His love in Jesus Christ.

Heart

Have you ever noticed that not everyone is responsible enough to enjoy certain blessings in life? How many times have we watched athletes or singers get rich at a young age and be bankrupt within a decade? Most of the time, they weren't prepared to handle the fame and fortune.

In a much bigger way, God knows what it will take to prepare us for the wonderful future awaiting us. God knows what we need in order to conform us into the image of Christ so that we can be ready for the inheritance. That's why sometimes He does not always rescue us from hardship and suffering; instead, He lets us be trained by the hard times, the distress, and the want so we can be the type of people who enjoy the blessings He has prepared for us (Rom. 8:28-39). We see this truth in the life of Joseph. He suffered greatly at his brothers' hands, but God used this event in Joseph's life to prepare him for his future role.

Hands

As believers, God has called us to cast aside indifference and to confront sin in our lives and our culture. We are to be bold as we stand for truth, even if we are outnumbered or our lonely voice crying out is mocked and rejected. We are not to be like Reuben, offering compromises to save face as we veil truth. We are to separate right from wrong. Clearly and emphatically. It is our duty to honor Christ above all else. We must live according to God's Word, trusting His goodness and His plan in the face of sin and evil knowing He is capable of redemptive reversal today.
