

“Surely, you will say to me, the Incarnation was an altogether unique event and cannot possibly be imitated in any way? My answer to that question is yes and no. Yes, it was unique, in the sense that the Son of God took our humanity to himself in Jesus of Nazareth, once and for all and forever, never to be repeated. That is true. But there is another sense in which the Incarnation was not unique the amazing grace of God in the Incarnation of Christ is to be _____ by all of us. The Incarnation, in that sense, was not unique but _____. We are all called to follow the example of His great humility in coming down from heaven to earth.” John Stott: “The Model – Becoming More Like Christ,” July 17, 2007

“To witness with our lives is to _____ the gospel by the way we live.”
Jim Peterson, Evangelism as a Lifestyle

1. We are _____ to be Christ to this world

2. We are _____ of being Christ to this world

“It is no good giving me a play like Hamlet or King Lear and telling me to write a play like that. Shakespeare could do it – I can’t. And it is no good showing me a life like the life of Jesus and telling me to live a life like that. Jesus could do it – I can’t. But if the genius of Shakespeare could come and live in me, then I could write plays like his. And if the _____ could come into me, then I _____ live a life like His.” William Temple, early 20th century Anglican Priest

3. We are _____ to be Christ to this world

4. We are, _____, Christ to this world

“The most effective preaching comes from those who _____ the things they are saying. They are their message. Christians need to look like what they are talking about ... What communicates is personal _____ – authenticity gets deep down inside people.”
John Poulton, A Today Sort of Evangelism
