Celebrating Christ

As a kid, I always felt kind of guilty around Christmas. We grew up actively involved in church, and we were always at worship and Bible class, and pretty much anything else offered. But around Christmas time, I always felt this weird guilt about NOT celebrating Christmas as Jesus' birth. I knew that there was no specific knowledge of the date of His birth, and that we still celebrated Christmas as a holiday and participated in the giving of gifts and even sang Christmas carols... and it seemed that I was somehow cheating Jesus by getting gifts around a time that so many said was His birthday. Have you ever felt this?

In our lesson this morning I want to talk more about this. I believe today, more strongly than ever, that Christ and His gift to us (eternal life) should make us thankful to Him and cause us to celebrate Him each and every day. I pray that as we live and grow spiritually, we will come to see that we shouldn't fear celebrating Him ever - and it should be the practice of our lives every day. Thank God for the gift of Christ! -Joe

There seems to be a lack of need for an attended nursery these days. Parents are choosing to train their children in the auditorium or other spaces. There is a cry room at the back of the auditorium, benches in the lobby outside the auditorium and the chapel, which has full video and audio from the service.

Starting in January there will be no nursery attendants. The cradle roll classroom will still be available for anyone who wishes to take their baby there (age 2 and under). We are so blessed with children at Southpoint and are eager to help them experience worship with their families.
